Vixxo Names New Chief Human Resources Officer

René Bonin joins the facilities management leader, strengthening talent management

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz., Sep. 18, 2018 - Vixxo, a facilities management leader focused on providing a seamless, intuitive experience for a vast portfolio of brands across North America, has named René Bonin as senior vice president, chief human resources officer. In her new role, René is responsible for establishing and implementing a human resources roadmap as well as strategies to support Vixxo's growth, including overseeing leadership development and performance management, and enhancing the associate experience. She reports to Vixxo President & CEO, Jim Reavey.

“Vixxo is on a path for growth backed by our innovative solutions and proven results in facilities management, but it’s our trusted associates that are our most valuable asset,” Reavey said. “René’s expertise across all functional areas of HR will support Vixxo as we continue to grow a strong and dedicated team across North America.”

René brings more than 15 years of experience in developing transformational HR programs to the Vixxo team. She joins the company from Iron Mountain, where she held various roles driving HR strategy, including enterprise-wide talent management initiatives, large-scale acquisitions, and their global transformation efforts. She began her career at international law firm WilmerHale, where she spent more than five years honing her deep expertise across all major HR disciplines.

By enabling clients to control spend, improve savings, reduce operational burdens and empower business growth, Vixxo is changing the way the world sees facilities management. To learn more about Vixxo, please visit www.vixxo.com, or follow on Twitter and LinkedIn.
